POLICEMAN KILLS NEGRO

SHOOTING IN CLAYSVILLE.

Slain Negro Threatened Paramour, WhoAppealed to Officer—Coroner's Inquest.

Dave Milton, a negro, was shot and instantly killed yesterday morning at about 11:30 o'clock by Patrolman Fred Link, after he had made an attempt to draw a revolver on the officer, who was acting in the discharge of his duty.

The killing took place in the negro suburb of Claysville and was the result of the official attempting to stop the negro who it is alleged had threatened to do harm to a negro woman by the name of Mag Overtree, with whom he was living.

Appeals to Officer.

Yesterday morning about 11 o'clock the negro woman applied to Patrolman Link to accompany her to Claysville and assist her in securing some clothing in the house where she and Milton lived as she was going to leave him for fear he would do her bodily harm. According to the woman Milton and had yesterday morning used sions and had yesterday morning used threatening words toward her.

Patrolman Link met the woman at the corner of Vine and Winnie streets, while riding in the delivery wagon of C. P. Cook & Co., and in company with James Day the driver of the automobile. Thinking the woman was loitering on the street he asked her what business she had in that vicinity when the woman told her story.

Went to Claysville.

Link agreed to accompany the woman to Claysville in an effort to secure her clothing and when they reached the home of Milton he was coming out on the street. Leaving the woman he walked rapidly in the direction of Milton and commanded him to stop. The negro seeing the officer, paid no attention to the command, whereupon Link asked him to wait as the woman desired to get her clothing. He then broke into a run, going in the direction of the Louisville & Nashville railroad crossing, when Link told him if he did not stop he would put him under arrest.

According to the story of Link, the negro looked behind him and said, "I'll kill you, you d— white s— before you'll ever arrest me," and he continued to run in a stooped position, at the same time attempting to get his revolver out of his belt.

Seeing this move Patrolman Link drew his revolver and fired, one shot, which took effect in Milton's body. He dropped the revolver which he held in his hand after walking about ten steps dropped dead in front of the door of Nannie Field. The revolver belonging to the negro was picked up in front of the home of George Ellis, colored.

The shooting took place in view of but few witnesses, but a large number were attracted by the sound of the shot and soon a number gathered around the scene of the killing. Link went to the negro who was lying on his face in the road and turned him over. He was later taken into his home.

Feared Officers Victim.

Coroner Rudolph Davis and Dr. William Kenney were soon on the scene and the former order the body moved. Dr. Kenney removed the bullet which was turned over to Coroner Davis together with the revolver belonging to the negro. The weapon which was a 32-caliber U. S. contained five loaded cartridges.

The Overtree woman stated yesterday in the presence of a number of witnesses that she was afraid of Milton, who had threatened her life several times and frequently whipped her. It is alleged that three days ago the negro shot three times at her, the difficulty between them arising over some trivial matter. She said she feared to live with him any longer and was preparing to get her clothing that she might take her departure.

Body Prepared for Burial.

Milton came to this city about a year ago from Shorter, Ala., and has since been employed as a section hand in the Louisville & Nashville railroad yards and as a laborer on railroad construction. He was aged about twenty-five years.

The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of Mr. George W. Davis where it was prepared for burial and until communication can be established with his relatives it will remain there. It is said Milton's father resides at Shorter and a telegram was sent him yesterday afternoon. It is probable the remains will be shipped to that place.

Coroner's Investigation.

GIRL OWNS AND RUNS
BIG WESTERN RANCH.

Ten years ago Miss Helen Lynch was a student in the High School at Omaha. Today she owns and personally operates a cattle ranch of 10,000 acres near Hyannis, Neb., on which are thousands of cattle and 100 horses and "cow ponies." The ranch is known as the "O-H," and cattle bearing that brand can be seen in the livestock markets of Omaha, Chicago and Kansas City.

Miss Lynch did not graduate from the Omaha schools, but she has made a success of the business to which she devoted herself upon the death of her father ten years ago.

Thomas Lynch left a little property in the shape of a small ranch out in the "sand hills" country, a widow and four children. At a family council after the funeral Helen announced her intention of quitting school and devoting her attention to the small ranch. Mr. Lynch had often said that Helen had good business sense, and mother gave her consent.

"No long-range management for me," said Helen. "I'm going out to the ranch and live on it."

And she did. Her father had many friends out on the range, and they were glad to advise her. She was able to separate good from the bad. So she prospered and the ranch grew from the small affair left by the father to the 10,000-acre domain of today.

Last year Helen cut 1,100 tons of hay, worth in Omaha more than $15,000. At the beginning there was considerable trouble with cattle "rustlers." A number of ranchmen got together and determined to wipe them out, and several of her cowboys lent their aid. Since then no cattle have ever been "rustled" on that ranch.

Miss Helen is an expert horsewoman and is in the saddle almost constantly. She is her own manager, buys her own cattle and takes them to market. She uses a big "Miles City" saddle, carries a lariat at the pommel and a revolver in a holster. She wears a divided skirt, a pair of boots that reach to her knees, and a large soft white hat.

She can use the lariat with any cowboy on the range and is a good shot. She is the best "hazer" around Hyannis. The hazer on ranch is the rider who steers a bucking broncho that is being broken. He follows at the heels of the regular "buster" and when the bronco is seen to be headed for a barbed wire fence or any other danger, he must so maneuver as to push his own mount away and the threatened danger. The job is one for a full-sized man. Miss Lynch is the only woman "hazer" in the county.

Miss Lynch's main object in carrying a lariat is to assist an animal in distress. Steers often get mired in the mud around the water holes and will perish if left to themselves. Miss Helen casts her rope over its horns and with the other end of the rope securely fastened to the pommel of her saddle pulls the animal out.

The recent blizzard came on suddenly and swept across the plains at the rate of fifty miles an hour. Miss Lynch and such of her cowboys as she could reach mounted their horses and set out after the great herd which they knew would soon start drifting before the snowy blasts. Before the riders arrived at that part of the range in which the herd had been grazing the animals were going at full speed. The cowboys and Miss Lynch went after them and mile after mile the race went on, the riders trying to head off the frightened animals. Finally the cows and calves gave up the flight and suffered themselves to be herded, but the steers kept on going.

Next day the blizzard was over, but on all sides were piled great snow drifts some twenty feet deep. Many miles to the south the stampeded herd was found in ravin and es draws. Many were frozen to death; others were so deep in the drifts that nothing but their heads and horns could be seen. Lariats were thrown over their horns and the steers pulled out. Miss Lynch doing her share of the work.

His "Maiden" Name.

It is said at certain seasons in Scotland, when the fishing is not very brisk, the fishermen act as caddies, and are easily recognized by their costume, a woolen jersey and trousers braced up to the armpits. One of these was asked his name by the gentleman for whom he was carrying, and the reply was: "Weel, sir, here about they mostly ca' me 'Breeks,' but ma 'maiden' name is 'Broon.'"

RYE AS A COVER CROP PREVENTS LAND WASHING

Kentucky is a land largely made up of rolling, hilly, or even mountainous areas with most of its soil of a clay formation. These two conditions present a most favorable combination for washing and in nearly every part of the state one becomes impressed with the terrible damage done annually by the gullying of sloping areas caused by heavy rains. Corn is Kentucky's principal crop, especially from the standpoint of area planted, and this crop after thorough loosening of the soil from cultivation during the summer leaves the ground in perfect condition for washing and subsequent gullying. The most effective way of preventing this great damage to our farms is by never leaving these cultivated areas open to the heavy rains of fall and winter, this being prevented by providing some growing crop to cover the ground during these seasons.

The plant most in favor in this State as a cover crop is rye. This is because of the relative cheapness of seed, the lateness at which rye can be sown, the comparative certainty of getting a stand, its degree of immunity to winter freezing, and the pasture which the crop furnishes before plowing under preparatory to the next year's crop.

Rye as a cover crop may be sown in the corn field any time from September fifteenth to October fifteenth, the earlier seeding often furnishing good late fall and winter pasture. It would be an excellent practice if each farmer would annually sow enough rye as a regular crop to provide sufficient seed for planting all areas on the farm which would otherwise be left naked during the winter.

Doubtless the only shortcoming of rye as a cover crop is that it does not feed upon nitrogen taken directly from the air and hence adds more of this valuable element of plant food to the soil. We must look to the so-called leguminous plants to perform this function. Hairy, or winter vetch, perhaps best supplements this need and can be successfully grown with rye by reducing the quantity of rye seed and sowing during September, preferably not later than the fifteenth of that month. Rye and vetch after mixing can be sown from the grain drill, in which case from two to three pecks of rye and about twenty pounds of vetch per acre should be used. Winter vetch has a slim stem, leaflets somewhat resembling those of alfalfa in shape and a blue clustering blossom which appear shortly before the ripening of the rye. Its reclining nature makes the rye of great benefit in its support for with its tendrils the vetch climbs nearly to the full height of the rye. The feeding value of vetch is excellent and more Kentucky farmers should test its merit as a cover crop, with rye.

GREAT EUROPEAN ARTISTS WITH GENTRY BROTHERS

When the average American is seeking a place near the stove in winter the agents of the big tented shows are working industriously engaging acts for the season which comes with season. This part of the amusement world is one which the public is not familiar. A little look into that cranny proves interesting.

November marks the close of the season for tented attractions like Gentry Bros. Famous Shows, which will visit this city next Saturday, Sept. 6. When the last wheel of the trains stop at winter headquarters the organization of the show for the succeeding season begins.

Trainees get busy framing new features. A showman, whose judgment has been demonstrated at once goes to Europe. He makes a careful canvas of the music halls and vaudeville theatre. For months he is acquainting himself with the novelties that are delighting the audiences on the other side.

He carefully selects from the thousands of acts he sees will most delight the American show patrons he makes engagements. Many performers who have pleased royalty, are brought to this country to become a part of Gentry Brothers Shows.

This season Gentry Brothers shows present, in addition to their world's famous animal actors, a score of performers who will be seen this season for the first time in America. Gentry Brothers famous shows are indeed all new. If you see them here next Saturday, Sept. 6, you will recognize them in the name only.

Killed by Flying Splinter.
A curious death befell a child at St. Die, France, the other day. A man was cutting up tree trunks for firing. He was splitting some of the large ones by boring a hole, putting in a little gunpowder, and exploding it. A girl of eight watched him from behind a first-floor window which closed. Suddenly a trunk exploded, and a splinter flew up, smashed through the window, and pierced the child's heart. She died immediately.

SUPREME COURT TO ATTACK TOBACCO POOLING ASSOCIATION

The fate of tobacco pooling associations as well as other framers' organizations organized to get better prices will come before the Supreme Court in October, when an attack will be made upon the constitutionality of the Kentucky statute legalizing tobacco pooling organizations. It is also said to be in conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law.

The joint tobacco commission of Congress, investigating the effect of foreign governmental purchases of American tobacco, is considering a proposal to recommend to Virginia growers the formation of pooling organizations, similar to those in Kentucky, as the only method of getting a living price out of their tobacco crops. Should the Supreme Court annul the Kentucky statute, the pooling idea might not be available to the Virginia and Carolina growers.

The exact status of tobacco pooling organizations has never been before the Supreme Court. It is said that the decision in the case will apply equally to all farmers' alliances formed to get better prices.

"BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER"

Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves. Thinness of the blood, or anemia, is common in young folks as well as old. Especially is it the case with those who work in ill-ventilated factories—or those who are shut up indoors in winter time with a coal stove burning up the oxygen or emitting carbonic (carbon) gas. The word, of course, which leads the red blood corpuscles in anemic people may have been caused by lack of exercise, or too much work, into lungs, or by poor digestion or dyspepsia. Sometimes people suffer intense pain over the heart which is not heart disease at all, but caused by indigestion. Whatever the cause, there's just one remedy that you can turn to—knowing that it has given satisfaction for over 40 years.

SUIT IS THROWN OUT OF COURT

First of Tax Actions By Revenue Agent to Be Decided.

BURLEY SOCIETY WINS

Similar Claims To Be Heard in Forty-four Counties.

LISTING DUTY OF OWNER

Enormous Sum Represented By Taxes and Fees Sought.

RUINOUS COURSE DEPLORED

LEXINGTON, KY.—Upon the ground that proof presented failed to show that property rightfully taxable had not been listed or that any property at issue had been omitted from assessment, the proceeding of John Howard, revenue agent for the State at large, against the Burley Tobacco Company, in which recovery of sixty thousand dollars in taxes and twelve thousand dollars in fees was sought, was thrown out of court. This was the first of forty-five similar suits brought by the Revenue Agent in Kentucky to be heard.

The laconic announcement of Judge J. Percy Scott: "I have heard plenty read and plenty said; this case is dismissed," which answered a suggestion from counsel for the plaintiff that he give a careful reading to cases that had been cited and also decided a notable cause, put too great a strain upon the feelings of those who had watched the course of the hearing for two days, and the county court room resounded with applause.

Dismissed on Motion.

The decision was predicted on a motion to dismiss which was made by Judge O'Rear when the case for the plaintiff had been rested shortly after noon, and obviated the taking of a mass of testimony represented in 200 witnesses called for the defense. Beginning immediately after court reconvened, argument of attorneys on the motion continued until almost 5 o'clock, and the case was presented with the same thoroughness and upon the same merits as though it had run the full course of testimony.

Responsibility With Grower.

Involved in the outcome was the pleading that responsibility for listing the property in question reposed with the grower, and that the Society, as selling agent, was not liable for the taxes, this contention being abundantly supported by decisions of the Court of Appeals submitted to the court. It was shown conclusively also that the law required that the property be assessed at the residence of the real and beneficial owner.

Victory Is Important.

The victory of the society was regarded as of large moment in that the Fayette County case occupied the position of keystone in the series of suits. The tobacco of numerous other counties was delivered here for sale and commingled with local crops; also this is the home office of the Burley Tobacco Society and the Burley Tobacco Company. Lively interest in the action was evinced by business men and bankers of Lexington as well as a host of growers, and a number of those who applauded the decision had participated in the meeting of the Commercial Club when the course of the Revenue Agent was deplored and the drag-net suits he had brought were branded as unnecessary and hurtful, jeopardizing the tobacco interests of the State.

Litigation Hurtful.

It was conceded that in this action the first to be tried, the Revenue Agent would bring his most effective resources to bear, and it was predicted that the result would have important bearing upon other suits. The litigation has tied up three hundred and sixty thousand dollars in the hands of the organization, and growers will acclaim final removal of this embargo when the last of the cases has been disposed of.

Taxes claimed in the forty-five suits aggregate $972,530.85, and in addition the fees anticipated by the Revenue Agent and his attorneys reach the enormous sum of $176,745.15, making a grand total of $1,149,276.

Claims By Counties.

In each of the suits the allegation is made that tobacco in the pools of 1906, 1907 and 1909 and proceeds were omitted from taxation for the years 1907 to 1911, inclusive. The tax and penalty claimed in each county follow: Adair, $1,275; Anderson, $7,400; $1,480; Barren, $4,530; $904; Boyle, $300; $60; Boone, $16,600; $3,320; Bourbon, $17,500; $2,500; Bracken, $46,150; $9,230; Breckinridge, $900; $180; Carroll, $21,150; $4,230; Casey, $500; $100; Clark, $17,600; $3,520; Fayette, $60,000; $12,000; Fleming, $33,650; $6,730; Franklin, $25,85; $5,15; Gallatin, $12,250; $2,250; Grant, $29,550; $5,910; Green, $1,500; $300; Hardin, $1,250; $250; Harrison, $48,500; $9,760; Hart, $12,800; $2,560; Henry, $14,500; $2,900; Jefferson, $260,915; $52,183; Jessamine, $7,850; $1,570; Kenton, $6,150; $1,230; Larue, $1,360; $372; Laurel, $150; $30; Lewis, $94,000; $1,880; Lincoln, $15; $4; Madison, $1,000; $200; Mason, $60,500; $12,100; Meade, $2,350; $670; Mercer, $9,250; $1,870; Metcalfe, $3,810; $762; Montgomery, $11,250; $17,250; Nelson, $1,200; $240; Nicholas, $23,600; $4,720; Oldham, $1,200; $240; Owen, $37,000; $7,400; Pendleton, $15,200; $3,400; Robertson, $6,250; $1,250; Scott, $43,000; $8,600; Spencer, $8,950; $1,790; Trimble, $13,100; $2,620; Washington, $3,000; $600; Woodford, $13,000; $2,600.

Business Men Deplore Suits.

At a meeting of the Lexington Commercial Club the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, it has been brought to the attention of the Board of Directors of the Lexington Commercial Club, that the tobacco interests of this city and State are again jeopardized by further harassing and embarrassing litigation having been instituted by revenue agents against the Burley Tobacco Society, and

"Whereas, the tobacco interest of Lexington and the Burley tobacco district is one of the greatest of our industrial, commercial and financial assets, an interest and a business which directly affects 40,000 farmers who, with their families, number approximately 200,000 of our citizens, and,

"Whereas, one of the main wheels and factors in this great commercial, industrial and financial tobacco enterprise, has been and is now the organization known as the Burley Tobacco Society, whose efforts in behalf of the farmers should be appreciated by every business man, and the benefits resulting from those efforts cannot be disputed or denied, therefore, be it

Ask For Dismissal.

"Resolved, that we deplore the great handicap of unnecessary litigation that has for many months hindered and embarrassed the laudable efforts of the Burley Tobacco Society and especially do we regret the further annoyance and embarrassment of this company by the prosecution of numerous suits by the revenue agents, in this and other counties, and for the good of a vast number of farmers and other interests of the State we hope and trust that the State and county officials will see their way clear to dismiss these actions now pending and that they and others will hereafter refrain from a like class of prosecutions."

Tax System Blamed.

Discussing the tax system of Kentucky in relation to the litigation in point, Editor Desha Breckinridge, of the Lexington Herald, says:

"Among other innumerable faults of this system, there are none more glaring than the provisions for the appointment and authority given to revenue agents. It became a custom for some lawyers to make an arrangement with the revenue agents for a division of the fees allowed for the collection of back taxes, instituting suits in the name of the revenue agent, when in fact it was the lawyer who conceived and executed the purpose to bring the suit. So flagrant became the abuses because of the institution of drag-net suits, which were often compromised for amounts only part of which reached the State Treasury, that the last Legislature modified the law so as to prevent this abuse.

Huge Drag-Net Cast.

"But there are still glaring evils under the present system, some of which are revealed by the innumerable suits instituted by John Howard, of Middleboro, a revenue agent for the State-at-Large, against the Burley Tobacco Society. The aggregate amount of property, for taxes on which suits were brought, is some sixty millions of dollars, the taxes on which would be some six hundred thousand dollars, with a penalty, which would go to recompose the revenue agent and his attorneys. The amount sued for is, of course, made so large as to cover all possible contingencies, like a drag-net with which the fisherman hopes to catch everything in the pond.

It is most unfortunate for the Burley tobacco growers, for the State and for the City of Lexington, that these suits have been instituted in the way in which they have been; and most unfortunate that there is apparent ground for the charge that their purpose is not so much to collect the amount of taxes due, if any are due, as to hamper and harass the Burley Tobacco Society.

The Just And The Unjust.

"There are forty thousand members of the Burley Tobacco Society who pledged their crops of 1911. Many of them undoubtedly listed their tobacco for taxation, as they are required to do by law, it being the duty of the owner of tobacco to list it for taxation. The suits, if successful, would require the society to pay out of its general fund, taxes on all the tobacco in its possession on the day on which it was required to be listed, so that those who had listed their tobacco for taxation and paid the taxes would be mulcted, as would also those who had not listed their tobacco. There are members of the Society who live in Indiana and Ohio who will, if these suits are successful, be required to contribute to pay the taxes collected in the forty counties of Kentucky, and the penalty, which would go to the revenue agent and his attorneys.

"The Burley Tobacco Society has on hand ready for distribution some three hundred thousand dollars. It is, of course, impossible for it to distribute that amount as long as these suits are on the dockets unsettled.

It Seems Curious.

"It seems curious that these suits should have been instituted against the Burley Tobacco Society, an organization formed for the purpose of aiding the tobacco growers to secure a reasonable price for their product, instead of having the American Tobacco Company secure that product at its own price, when no similar suits had been previously brought against the warehouses of Louisville, in which for years there have been enormous amounts of tobacco stored, nor any similar suit brought against the Dark Tobacco Association, of Southwestern Kentucky, which was organized before the Burley Tobacco Society. It is further a matter of comment that Judge Lewis Apperson, of Mt. Sterling, the attorney for the revenue agent, Mr. Howard, who has instituted these suits, has always been a violent opponent of the Burley Tobacco Society. Judge Apperson grew a crop of tobacco, which was guarded at public expense, in the cut-out year, and because of the pool of 1906 and 1907, and the cut-out, which he vigorously opposed and bitterly denounced, sold his tobacco at a much higher price than he would have otherwise been able to obtain for it. He now appears as attorney of record for the State revenue agent who institutes suits, the effect, if not the purpose of which, is to harass and to hamper the Burley Tobacco Society.

HOW THE EXPRESSION "SHOW ME" ORIGINATED

A little while ago a well-intentioned critic of St. Louis informed the business men that their city had outgrown its stuck-in-the-mud slogan, "You'll have to show me," and that the first step in the direction of progress must be the selection of a less slow slogan. A few of those who read his speech in the daily papers protested that "show me" was never in any sense the property of St. Louis. They were not sure whence it had come, nor why they could remember only vaguely the first time they heard it, but they were positive it belonged to the State of Missouri, and not to any one city, assuredly not to the metropolis on the Mississippi.

A gentleman with a fondness for delving in the dust-laden records of the Historical Society has now appeared with the information that the challenge, "You'll have to show me," is the corruption of the name of a famous Indian chieftain of the Sioux tribe, whose grave is in the western part of the State—old Yumas Shome having led the tribe who crossed the lowlands below the mouth of the Illinois, carrying their canoes on their heads from the Mississippi to the Missouri, and thus giving the name to the historic old French town, Portage des Sioux. Yumas Shome, it is said, is buried at Westport, in Jackson county, and his name—carelessly pronounced "You mus' show me," has passed into the vernacular of the State.

It is a pretty story, and one that we ought to permit ourselves the pleasure of believing. But, alas, it is a practical age, and sooner or later some stickler for the fact is sure to come forward with the proof that there never was any such chief as Yumas Shome. The man who wrote to one of the daily papers concerning him must have had some authority for his statement. Indeed he had what looked like excellent authority. He found it in a scrap book, and it was in very good hexameter. He was sure that poet must have known what he was writing about or he would not have succeeded in getting his verses published. The material story of the chief appeared in a magazine called Kings and Queens of the Range, and devoted to the interests of the great Texas and Kansas ranchers. It was published while the exposition at Omaha was in the flower of its first success, and was the effect and the cause of "You must show me."

It came about in this way: When Omaha first talked about holding a trans-Mississippi exposition the newspapers in Kansas City indulged in a fusilage of sarcastic gibes. The idea of Omaha, the dead one, bestirring itself enough to get up a world's fair was too preposterous to be accepted as serious. And so, when the fair became a fact and included among its days a Kansas City day, a large delegation went up from the Kaw town, each wearing a button with the legend, "I'm from Missouri. You'll have to show me." The expression caught the public fancy and in a little while Missouri was known the world over as the "Show Me State."

It is OS that started the stick-in-the-mud slogan.

GAS COMPANY LAYING MAIN TO CONNECT WITH PIPE LINE

The Paris Gas & Electric Company yesterday began with a large force of men to lay a gas main from the end of its service at Nineteenth street to the Clintonville pike to connect with the pipe line of the Central Kentucky Natural Gas Co., extending to that point.

The work of laying the new main will be pushed with all haste looking to its early completion, when the men engaged in the work will be employed in improving a number of other mains in the city. Superintendent Steenbergen is advertising for more men to assist in this work with a view of rushing it through before cold weather sets in.

Unless some difficulty is encountered, it is probable that natural gas will be turned into the city not later than the first of October. The local company, which a few days ago purchased the franchise to operate in this city the Central Kentucky Natural Gas Co. and which will act as a distributor, contemplates extensive improvements before the gas will be turned into the city mains.

EXECUTE 'MAN TIGER'

Jake Oppenheimer, Noted Criminal Is Put to Death.

Murdered Many Men—Having Added Several Killings to His Record While in Prison, for One of Which He Hanged.

Folsom, Cal.—"Jake" Oppenheimer, known as "The Criminal of the Century" and "The Tiger Man," because of his murderous ferocity, was put to death on the gallows here for the murder of a fellow-convict in Folsom prison.

Oppenheimer was probably one of the most remarkable criminals of the age. He had at least four murders to his credit and innumerable murderous assaults. He commenced his criminal career when a boy. Discharged by the superintendent of a telegraph company in San Francisco, he thereupon shot and killed the official.

Oppenheimer, in some way, "beat the case," but three years later was sentenced to fifty years' imprisonment for robbing a drug store. This severe sentence was given him because of evidence showing that he was a dangerous and habitual criminal. A man named Ross testified against Oppenheimer at his trial, at which time "The Man Tiger" swore to be revenged.

Not long after Oppenheimer's arrival at Folsom prison, Ross was sent there as a convict. Oppenheimer waited for him at the gate and stabbed him to death before the guards could interfere. A short time later Oppenheimer murdered a guard named McDonald. As punishment he was placed in solitary confinement, but obtaining a file he made his way out and attacked a fellow-convict named John Wilson with a butcher knife. Wilson died a few days later.

In 1901 the state legislature passed a law imposing the death penalty upon any prisoner who should make an assault upon a prison official or a fellow-prisoner. Under this law, Oppenheimer was tried in October, 1907, for the murder of Wilson. He was found guilty, and was sentenced to die on June 6, 1908.

Apparently supplied with plenty of money, Oppenheimer fought his case all the way up to the Supreme court of the United States, but finally lost. He then endeavored to obtain his freedom by writ of habeas corpus, but in vain.

While awaiting the decision of the courts in his efforts to save himself from the gallows, Oppenheimer was kept in strict confinement at the Folsom prison. There he continued his criminal career with unequalled cunning and ferocity. In company with two other criminals, prisoners, J. W. Finley and San Francisco Quijada, Oppenheimer made an attempt to break out of the prison at midnight on January 4, 1910, by sawing the bars of their cell. They would have succeeded had not Night Captain Quigmore detected them sneaking along the corridor.

Quijada, a half-breed Yaqui Indian, had attacked some of the prison guards several years before and had been sentenced to death under the law of 1901. He appealed to the courts, and his case was pending at the time when Oppenheimer began his fight for his life. There was considerable ill-feeling between the two prisoners from the very beginning, and their mutual hatred increased in the course of time. The climax came in September of 1901, when one morning Quijada challenged Oppenheimer to a combat for life, while the prisoners were permitted to exercise in the corridor of the prison.

Oppenheimer, who had secretly prepared himself for such an emergency, flung himself upon the Indian and stabbed him to death with a sharp piece of steel, which he had picked up in the prison yard several months before, and which he had secreted in his mattress ever since.

WEDDED AFTER 30 YEARS

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Parted for more than thirty years, Peter J. Barnes, seventy-five years old, of Kansas, and Mrs. Auguste Doty, seventy-one, widow of Supervisor Joseph Doty of Pleasant Valley, who were sweethearts in their childhood days, were married at Salt Point, near here, and will spend the rest of their lives in Pleasant Valley, a short distance outside this city.

The meeting of the couple was accidental. Mr. Barnes was visiting at the home of an old friend in Pleasant Valley a few days ago and was introduced to Mrs. Doty. Their love was renewed and the marriage followed.

Stung to Death by Bees.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Jeremiah Kramer, seventy-two years old and half blind, ran into a big swarm of bees which were about to swarm on a projecting beam in his wagon shed on Wind Gap road. Instead of taking to the beam the bees enveloped Kramer and piled upon his face and long whiskers.

Kramer yelled for help and fought the bees as best he could, but he was soon helpless from their stings. The onslaught of the bees rendered him unconscious and he was found by his son three hours later lying on the wagon shed floor with the myriads of bees on his head, arms and neck, which were swollen twice their natural size. Although medical aid was hurriedly summoned Kramer died.

Grown Folks May Wear Slit Gowns.

Lexington, Ky.—"Grown up folks may wear slit gowns, but the young shall not," declared Judge J. P. She was dressed in a smart slit gown.

$2,000 RUG IS BIG LUXURY

Washington. — Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels has lofty ideas of artistically beautiful things, and is specially fond of oriental and Persian rugs, but he is also loyal to democratic simplicity.

When the secretary went to his office a few days ago he found the place crowded with rugs of every description. Officers and clerks on duty had been joking among themselves as to "when the auction was going to begin."

The secretary was informed that there was a balance left of an appropriation for furnishing his apartment, and that the rugs were there for him to make a selection for his office.

Mr. Daniels finally selected one large rug as being to his liking. A clerk had told him that the purchase must be made before he left the office.

fee, as the allowance would lapse if not used.

"I thought those rugs might be bought for something like the figures we poor folks down in North Carolina pay," said the secretary. "I picked out my rug, all right. But they told me the price was $2,000, and wanted me to sign a warrant for it. It was a beauty—pearly blue, with all the iridescent misty amethystine shades of a mountain sky. But $2,000! My ideas of democratic simplicity could not get up to that figure, and I told the boys to take the whole blamed outfit away and that I didn't want any rug at all. These here are good enough for me."

NEW YORKER ADMITS BIGAMY

Confesses to Marrying Two Young Women Within Year—Says He Was Drunk.

Stamford, Conn.—Arthur B. Bush pleaded guilty to bigamy in the city court. Bush was married June 15, 1912, to Miss Helen K. Kinneburg, a daughter of Russell Kinneburg of Hoboken, N. J., immediately after his first wife had divorced him in Pennsylvania. He came to Stamford in April with Miss Anita Von Fisher, and was married to Miss Von Fisher by Rev. J. W. Richardson.

His second wife gave birth to a child and is now with her parents in Hoboken. Bush claims he was intoxicated when he contracted the third marriage.

When he discovered he had committed bigamy, he said, he was afraid to ask advice and decided to let the thing drift. He had been on friendly terms until lately with both the second and third women he married.

Kramer yelled for help and fought the bees as best he could, but he was soon helpless from their stings. The onslaught of the bees rendered him unconscious and he was found by his son three hours later lying on the wagon shed floor with the myriads of bees on his head, arms and neck, which were swollen twice their natural size. Although medical aid was hurriedly summoned Kramer died.

WAS LURED BY GOLD

How Plague Ship Captain Secured an Engineer.

New York.—The favorite story of Capt. Walter Ancker, superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad's floating equipment at pier No. 22, foot of Jay street, North river, who died some time ago, was of his experience on plague ship.

Ancker was assistant engineer on the German steamer Minister Achernbach, which lay at Nikolaiev, on the Bug river. One day he and Captain Kahmke were discussing bubonic plague in the cabin on the bridge deck when Captain Stringer of the British tramp Sea Gull came along-side in one of his boats, very much excited.

"A hundred pounds in gold for an engineer!" shouted the captain. "I'm short of engineers. I'll drop him off at Constantinople and there you can pick him up."

Captain Kahmke advised Ancker to accept the offer, saying the Achernbach would be at Constantinople in about a week. Ancker accepted it and turned over half of the 100 pounds in gold to his captain for safe-keeping and tucked the other half inside his belt.

Inside of half an hour the young engineer was aboard the Sea Gull, which already had steam up in the Bug. She was low down in the water. She had just returned from India, and her crew embraced Lascars, Russians, Finns and English. All the officers were English.

The captain was unusually hospitable. He came to the engine room, bringing a flask of brandy and a box of cigars to the engineer and asking him not to leave the engine room and not to spare the cigars and brandy. It looked suspicious—such liberal hospitality.

At four bells of the first watch Engineer Ancker decided to steal a little sleep in a comfortable armchair which the skipper had sent below. He stepped first into the alleyway, where were the berths labeled respectively "Engineer," "First Engineer" and "Second Assistant Engineer." In the first room he saw the form of a man in the bunk. In room No. 2, darker than the first, he touched a man apparently asleep, a bottle of brandy by his side. From the bunk in the third room Ancker grabbed a blanket and wrapped himself in it in his chair in the engine room.

"Do you think it is measles?" retorted the man contemptuously.

Questioning the sailor more closely, Ancker learned that nine out of the crew of 36 were already dead, including the regular engineer, the first assistant and the second assistant, whose bunks the understudy had visited during the previous night.

Twice again on that day were splashes alongside. Ancker took frequent small nips of brandy, smoked cigars, drank boiled water only and ate sparingly.

FINDS FAILINGS OF FICTION

New York.—Louis Brown read all of Horatio Alger, Jr.'s books. There he found out that the quickest way to become a millionaire was to start as a bootblack or to sell papers. So he came to New York with a bootblack box slung over his arm and with all of his twelve years of experience and the precepts of his favorite author to guide him.

"Please, sir," he said to Patrolman Burke at Graham avenue and Broadway, Brooklyn, "can you tell me where is the proper place for me to start out to be a millionaire?"

There are some things New York policemen do not know, so Patrolman Burke took Louis to the Stagg street police station on a charge of vagrancy. Then the boy was sent to the Children's society, in Schermerhorn street, where he will stay while his ambitions are investigated. Louis said he lived in Providence.

Asks Ex-Wife to His Funeral. Worcester, Mass.—Leaving a note to his sister, Mrs. Henry Collins, with whom he lived, directing that $35 be given to the divorced wife with which to purchase a mourning gown and that she be asked to be chief mourner at his funeral, Ferdinand Helfenstein turned on the gas in his bedroom and died. Mrs. Helfenstein obtained a divorce from her husband last January and since then he had been despondent. Helfenstein left a note for his former wife, but its contents have not been disclosed.

Offers Big Inducements. Findlay, O.—A sun shade, a riding cultivator, plenty of sterilized ice water to drink and ice cream every day are the inducements offered to the man who will take a job on the farm of H. B. Clark near here. Clark states that he has hundreds of acres of corn dying for want of cultivation. He agrees to pay higher wages than any other farmer in the county.

Truck Replaced Three Teams

In eleven months this three-ton KisselKar Truck covered in actual service 4,760 miles at a fuel cost of $1.08 per day. Manned by a driver and one helper, it replaced three teams of horses. The average daily burden was 37 17.20ths tons. It carried an average load of four tons—one ton overload—but in the entire period named, was laid up only two and one-half hours for repairs.

"We can recommend the KisselKar Truck and assure that it lives up to its guarantee," writes Thomas E. Fleischer, manager of the Sheboygan Lime Works.

Two and one-half hours for repairs, carrying over 37 tons per day is a record worthy of notice. KisselKar Trucks cost little to maintain and are economical to operate because the problem is solved in KisselKar construction.

Note these striking KisselKar features—Simple engine—easy to operate—reserve power—excess capacity—differential lock preventing one drive wheel absorbing all the power on slippery places, and stalling the truck—four speed transmitters geared up—four speed permitting high speed when desired without racing engine; 15 to 20 per cent lower fuel consumption than average trucks—light spring suspension for power plant, heavy spring suspension for load—gauge that weighs load—greatest accessibility—easy control—larger brake drums, and extra powerful brakes—special bodies designed to meet every need.

KisselKar Trucks

1500 lbs.-1-2-3-4 and 5 Tons

In the range of capacity, 1500 lbs. to 5 tons, you can find just the type that fills your requirements—and with the KisselKar Truck goes the KisselKar Service, which is the manufacturer's guarantee of satisfaction.

KisselKar Service means taking off your hands all of the mechanical details. A special service building is maintained in this city for the benefit of KisselKar owners. The KisselKar service is a broad and comprehensive arrangement between manufacturer and owners that cares for the car, maintains efficiency, retards depreciation and minimizes upkeep. This service is a valuable consideration in the purchase of a power wagon. Investigate.

Ask us to analyze your present horse haulage as compared to motor haulage. The result will be interesting.

Send for free book showing KisselKar Trucks in actual use in your line and many other lines of business.

THEATRICAL.

THE COLUMBIA TODAY.

"King Rene's Daughter," the three reel Thanhouser picture which will be shown at the Columbia this afternoon and night is one of the sweetest stories ever told in moving pictures. It is a poetic drama, the scenes being laid in Denmark in the fifteenth century, and the Thanhouser cast of actors, headed by Miss Maude Fealy, who plays the leading part of "Jolantho," the King's daughter, brings around one of the sweetest romantic stories of ancient Denmark, showing how the gentleness of "Tristan," her lover, mingled with his kindness and love terminates in a happy ending to one whose life had been one of sorrow.

The Bank of England has been under military protection every night since 1780.

RESPONDING PROMPTLY.

There has been no finer evidence of the splendid generosity of the Bourbon county people than the way in which they are meeting the payments on the new Young Men's Christian Association building. Earlier in the week notices were mailed to all subscribers calling attention to the fact that next Monday, Sept. 1st, is the date when the first installment is to be paid. It is gratifying to note, however, that the same spirit which manifested itself in the campaign last June is still present and many of those who made pledges have already paid them, and nearly half of those paying paid the full amount of their subscriptions. It is hoped that this will continue so that the work on the new building may be hastened.

The pledges are payable at the Bourbon Bank and Trust Company, and it is expected that practically all subscribers will either call and pay or mail checks before the end of the coming week.

GOOD REASON FOR HIS ENTHUSIASM.

When a man has suffered for several days with colic, diarrhoea or other form of bowel complaint and is then cured sound and well by one or two doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as is often the case, it is but natural that he should be enthusiastic in his praises of the remedy, and especially is this the case of a severe attack when life is threatened. Try it when in need of such a remedy. It never fails. Sold by all dealers.
